FLYAWAY GEESE TO JOIN 2026 GCSAA CONFERENCE AND TRADE SHOW

Wildlife mitigation company, Flyaway Geese, will be in attendance once again for the annual GCSAA show.

Flyaway Geese, owned and operated by Rebecca Gibson, is set to attend the 2026 Golf Course Superintendents Association of America's annual conference and trade show February 2-5 in Orlando, Florida.

For the 8th consecutive year, Flyaway Geese will travel from their home base of Charlotte, North Carolina to attend the GCSSA event and provide information on their services, as well as entertainment and education on the most tried and true, humane wildlife mitigation services offered in the business.

Gibson and her team have become a trade show highlight over the years for bringing golf course super intendent's best friend, the border collie, to the show and providing live demonstrations of her talented dogs.

"This will be our 8th year attending the GCSAA Trade Show and we are always excited to showcase how we can help the community that we have been a part of for nearly 30 years," Gibson said. "We always enjoy bringing the dogs to the event and seeing a lot of familiar faces from years past and meeting new ones as well."

Flyaway Geese will be putting on live demos on 2-4 and 2-5, showcasing the dogs abilities. These demos will be located at the Flyaway Geese booth at 9:30 a.m., 1:00 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday and 8:45 a.m and 9:45 a.m. They will provide an entertaining and educational look at how the dogs work and their natural abilities.

Gibson said, "Our demos are often one of the big attractions at these events. It allows our dogs to show off what they have been bred and trained to do and gives the attendees the opportunity to see an example of what our company can provide them."
